

Update from Katy, May 1, 2020

Dear Praying friends,

Life is continuing much the same, self-isolating and working with the three Mbembe translation teams long distance. They have recently been given funds to buy new modems for all the translators and I am hoping this will give a good enough connection to talk and share screens over Zoom, as well as just exchanging notes and comments.

Due to various events, I am behind schedule. This month has been taken up with comparing the parallel passages in the synoptic gospels, to ensure appropriate consistency. So I am only now beginning to work on reviewing the epistles, all for the new edition of the Mbembe-Adun New Testament. Please continue to pray for alertness and wisdom,

I would value your prayers that I will be able to sleep soundly through the night. Too often I lie awake at night. I am not worrying - it is a good time for reciting favourite Scripture passages from memory, for praying for friends and family, and for colleagues and others around the globe. But then I find myself falling asleep during the day when I am trying to work. I need to establish a better routine!

Please continue to pray for the Mbembe translators, and indeed for all Bible translators in Nigeria and worldwide, precious people who have been trained and have become skilled in translating into their own language. Pray for protection from Coronavirus and from any other form of attack.

Love and greetings to everyone! Praying for you too.
